The Armorial Bearings Of Western Nigeria

It is notified for general information that the above design for the Armorial Bearings of Western Nigeria has been approved by Her Majesty the Queen and that the use of this design will come into effect immadiately.

The symbolic significance of the design is as follows:-

The two elephants symbolise strength, service and prosperity.

The two symbols which embody the spirit and purpose of the Western Region are the Ada or Chiefs' sword, which is the symbol of the Obas, and the Mace which is the symbol of a parliamentary form of Government and the power of common people as expressed by their elected representatives.

Below the Regional symbols comes the Federal symbol of the Star of David in which is enclosed the Crown of England.

The cocoa tree and the two crossed logs of wood signify the dependence of the Region on, and its respect for, agriculture and the natural resources of the land. The cocoa tree is in the main the symbol of the Yoruba part of the Region, while the two crossed logs of wood denote the timber and the rubber trade of Midwest area.

The final figure is that of the heraldic lion which symbolises not only nobility but the Region's connection with the British Crown.

The motto "Liberty and Service" was chosen for its simplicity and dignity.

AGRICULTURE

In the past five years the Western Regional Government has achieved notable successes in its efforts to aid farmers in increasing cocoa production and other crops on which the Region's wealth depends, and to control cocoa diseases.

Efforts have been made to solve the farmers' daily problems. Improved cocoa and oil-palm seedlings have been distributed and encouragement given to citrus and pine-apple planting.

Government intends to develop a cattle industry and a foundation herd of suitable cattle has been built up. In addition improved poultry breeds have been introduced.

Finally the Forestry Department has continued to preserve and enrich the forests on which exports and internal supply depend.
