Nigerian Studies Medical Museum Techniques

Mr. R.I. Okpa, of Lagos University, is learning a new technique of preserving anatomical organs in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, London. This picture shows him discussing corrosive casting with Dr. D.H. Thompsett, who is a pioneer in this technique by which acid is used to remove all flesh and so leave only the veins and arteries.

These organs are then available for training doctors. "This museum is probably the [illegible] in the world" said Mr. Okpa, who is Tutor Prosector of Anatomy. "There is nothing else to compare with it and people from medical schools all over the globe are constantly visiting it for advice".

After a six months course, which includes display and cataloguing, Mr Okpa hopes to set up a full scale medical museum when he returns to Nigeria.

E ma polowo oja yin, ki e si tun ma ka iwe irohin ELETI–OFE ti o kun fun irohin aladun losose.

BCGA Discuss Nigeria's Cotton Industry

LONDON — The rapid and successful developmen of the cotton indnstry in Nigeria was discussed at the annual meeting in Marchester of the British Cotton Growing Associaion by their President, the Earl of Derby, last weekend.

The Nigerian cotton ginned out at over 280,000 bales and came close to exceeding the highest ever production, Lord Derby reported.

'Excellent out-turns were obtained from the factories and a preudetion recod of 16,532 bales in a week was established, 'he said.

Increases in the growth of American types of cotton in nearly all the African countries during the year, including 122 000 bales in Nigeria, gave a net overall production increase of 85 000 bales, waile total production rose to a new record of 1 935 200 bales

Nigeria's own textile industry was now taking a substantial production of the local crop, Lord Darby went on; as more mills were projected in Nigeria, it was obvious that intensive efforts would have to be made to increase production if exports were to be maintained.

High proces were undoubtedly the best stimulus but much could be done by encouraging farmers to adopt new and the scientific progress that had been made in recent years.

The Nigerian industry's chief need at present was better methods of cultivation, taking advantage of for more extension workers in ths field to instruct local farmers in the best methons of cultivation and where necessary in said Lord Derby.

Disarmament Delegation

LONDON— Sir Harold Beeley, the present British Ambassador at Cairo, is being appointed perminet British representative to the Disarmament Conference, Geneva, in succession to Sir Paul Mason, who is retiring from the Foreign Service.

Sir George Middleton, at present Ambssador at Buenos Aires, is to succeed Sir Harold in Cairo.

British Writer On The Beauty Of Abuja Pottery

LONDON—The beauty of Abuja pottery, the artistry of the Nigerian potters trained there and the value of their work in stimulating craftsmen all over the world, is the subject of a two-page article by Jonathan Siye in the April edition of AFRICAN WORLD.

Pictures of the Training Centre, of its founder Michael Cardew the Cornish potter and of Ladi Kwali, M. B. E., its most famous trainee whose work has been bought by museums in Britain Europe and America illustrate the article tracing the history of the Abuja Centre, which says Slye, has now been successful in relating modern to traditional methods. 'And it can be reasonably predicted that it will in the future not only enrich rural potters' work but prevent it as a craft from perishing in the flood of imported, unartistic metal and enamel substitutes' he observes.

Abuja products, he goes on are 'universally acclaimed by connoisseurs of the ceramic world. Examples stand on the shelves of private collectors, the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, Bornan's Museum, R[illegible] Harman Foundation New York and in Nigerian Embass es throughout the world.

British Ship On Maden Voyage To West Africa

LONDON—A new British cargo ship built for Elder Dempster Lines, the m. v. 'Fian' sai her maiden voyage from Liverpool on April 16 to a number of West African ports, including Lagos and Calabar

The 'Fian' named after the town in [illegible] Province, Northern Ghana was under the command of Captain N. Pryce. Her crew consists of men from Britain and Sierra Leone totalling forty-five.

The 'Fian' was built by Messrs Lithgow of Port Glasgow and was launched last October. She is the final vessel [illegible] series of six [illegible] design, meeting the [illegible] requirements of the West African trade.

She will operate at a service speed of 16 knots propelled by a single screw driven by a Fairfield-Sulzer diesel of 7500 bhp.

The [illegible] ports of call on her maiden voyage include Dakar, Bathurst, Takoradi, Cotonou, Tiko, Douala, Santa Isabel e, Point Noire and Fernando Po.
