First African Universities Press Books On Sale In Britain

LONDON—The first three books to be published by African Universities Press of Lagos—the first indigenous publishing house in independent Africa—were on sale in Britain this week.

The British publisher, Andre Deutsch, who played a considerable part in the formation of the African Universities Press last October and is now a director of it, is acting as distributor of the books in Britain and other parts of the world.

The first three titles, which have already been published in West Africa are: Reflection-Nigerian Prose and Verse, edited by Frances Ademola; "A Chronicle of Abuja", a translation from Hausa by Alhaji Hassan and Maham Shuaribu Nambi; and "An African Night's Entertainment" a children's book by Cyprian Ekwensi. "We have already dispatched copies of these books to other countries including New Zealand, Australia, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, the Caribbean, Hong Kong and Singapore, a spokesman for Andrew Deutsch told our correspondent yesterday.

African Universities Press will concentrate mainly the production of educational books. Forthcoming titles include Let's Look at Literature, by Elizabeth Pryse; French for Africa, by H F Kynaston-Bhell; and You and Your Baby by Dr. WRF Collins and Dr. R O Adeniji-Jones.

Nigerian Traders Will Now Buy Goods From Russia

But No Credit Facility

MOSCOW—For the first time in Nigeria history, her citizens, under an agreement signed recently in Moscow by Federal Minister of Commerce and Industry, Alhaji Zanna Bukar Dipcharima, who left Russia for Lagos having signed first trade agreement on behalf of Nigeria with the Soviet Union, will now be able to buy goods from that country.

Before his departure the Minister said that under the agreement Russia would buy our groundnuts, palm oil, and cotton in return for Soviet consumer goods and farming implements.

Our correspondent indicates no question of any credit being granted by the Soviet Union, even if granted that our government did not ask for this facility.

Meanwhile, all the trade deals with other conventional countries are holding turnover of several million pounds annually. It is understood that Soviet Union may be larger considering the size of the country.

and Industry.

once trained, as farmers, they are set up on their own small-holdings with the necessary amount of help and advice in running them.

Medical Research In Cameroun

The Federal Republic of Cameroun has concluded an agreement with the British Medical Research Council, which will guarantee the maintenance of British research at the Kumba Medical Centre. By agreement the salaries of the research staff will be met by the British Government.

British Graduate Teachers For East Africa

Thirty-seven British graduate teachers are due in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika in September, to take up teaching appointments in secondary schools, technical institutes and universities. They have been recruited by the Voluntary Service Overseas organisation in London, to spend initially one year teaching abroad. The British Department of Technical Co-operation is spending about £100,000 this year in subsidising the cost of sending graduate and other volunteers to developing countries.

Britons To Work In Commonwealth Universities

LONDON—A new awards scheme to enable outstanding men and women from British Universities to serve for a time in selected post in other Commonwealth Universities was announced in London on Tuesday.

News of the scheme was given to the House of Commons by the Secretary for Technical Co-operation, Mr Robert Carr.

Mr Carr said each award will be £1,500 a year and will be additional to the total emoluments ordinarily paid to British University staff in the countries concerned. The first award will be made in 1964.

Overseas Universities are being consulted about the post they would like to fill in this way.

It is also, of course, consulting British Universities and Academic Institutions, and is an confident that they will give their full co-operation in arranging for the selection and secondment of people of high distinction.

"I hope this scheme will be seen as a further indication of the importance the British Government attaches to service overseas.

Britain's Overseas Aid Goes to Africa

LONDON—More than half of Britain's technical aid to developing countries this year will go to Africa.

The British Secretary for Technical Co-operation, Mr Robert Carr, told the Commons this in a written reply to a question from Mr Reginald Prentice (Labour) on Tuesday.

"This year my Department expects to give about 16 percent of its assistance to Asia, 57 percent to Africa, one percent to South America and eight percent to other parts of the world.

Jet-Engine Training For Moroccan Engineers

Equipment for the specialised training of mechanics in the maintenance and repair work on Rolls-Royce Avon jet engines is to be supplied to the Moroccan Government's civil aviation and meteorological training centre at Casablanca, by the British Department of Technical Co-operation.

Education Diplomas For Kenya Teachers

Two Kenya schoolteachers, Mrs Razia Sultana Abdulla of the Muslim Girls High School Nairobi, and Miss Shkirin Nassim, of the Aga Khan Primary school, Nairobi, have been awarded the Associateship in Education for Overseas Teachers at the end of their 10 month course at the Institute of Education, Durham University, England.

Blind Training Farms For Sierra Leone and Gambia

Farm training centres for the blind are shortly to be set up in Sierra Leone and Gambia, the Royal Commonwealth Society states in its annual report, published in London recently. The centres will be similar to those already established in Nigeria, Ghana and many other countries.

The purpose of the farm training centres is to help blind villagers to grow their own food and to see that,
