Lagos Ikorodu Road Opens Today

The Lagos - Ikorodu Road was opened by the Lagos - Ikorodu Road Commission in January 1932 and the work was taken over by the Public Works Department in August of that year. The road from the Yaba roundabout to mile 12, except for the Ojo bridge, was opened in May 1932.

The road area for bridges and major culverts is 1,741 sq. 97' feet in length, half of it having a cross-section 22 feet in width. Foundations in many cases had to be carried down to 60 feet, the cost of these was £10,000.

The nature of the country necessitated the construction of extensive embankments, a direct line for 100 ft. and a cut were incorporated in the construction. In addition, some 140,000 tons of earth were deposited for the crossing of the Curchberg swamp, which in parts, is eighty feet in depth.

Buildings, scrapers, graders and other mechanical plant were used in construction. The maximum labour force was one thousand men but usually there were less than half this number.

It was virtually impossible to carry out any construction work during the wet years 30 and 31 and it was directed to prevent damage to work already completed. As almost 90% of the road is now opened it recedes in the rain a wide winding way through an inland sea.

The Engineer in charge during the latter stages of construction has been Mr. D.S. Hunter, A.M.A.S.E., M.B.E., J.E.I. He was succeeded by Mr. H. K. A. Smith, Mr. H. A. Smith, Mr. P. Parker, Mr. L. L. L. and Col. Woodbridge, Mr. S.E. De Silva, Inspector of works, has been in the road since the work was taken over by the P.W.D. Mr. A.R. (now) Engineering Assistant Grade II has been in the work since February 1933. The cost of the road is £5,250,000 and the total cost was £3,980,000, a just over £1,300 per mile since the majority of the road built in Nigeria outside Lagos.

Owing to the quality of the work, there will probably be considerable improvement under the embankments during the next few years.
