Trade Fair News...

(By Our Own Correspondent)

Today is the opening day of the NIGERIAN INTERNATIONAL TRADE FAIR taking place on Victoria Island, Lagos and we dedicated this page for the FAIR News. We understand that about forty-two foreign Governments are to be represented at the FAIR and there will be plenty of side attractions.

Invited guests only will be admitted to the fair-ground this morning when the Governor-General, Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, will declare the FAIR open, but as from 4 p.m. the general public will be allowed in.

British Day

The Fair authorities have designated tomorrow (Sunday) as "British Day" at the Fair when the Pipes and Drums of the First Battalion Royal Highland Fusiliers, who are being flown from Malta for the occasion will play fine British and Scottish music.

Mr. Alan Green, M. P., Minister of State in the British Board of Trade who is visiting Nigeria for the Fair will attend the ceremony and with him on the dais will be Alhaji the Hon. Z. B. Dipeolu, the Federal Minister of Commerce and Industry, also the British High Commissioner in Nigeria, Lord Head.

The theme of the British Pavilion is "Nigeria and Britain—partners in progress." Visitors to the Fair will be able to see lots of models illustrating British industry's latest developments.

Yesterday your correspondent was able to see lots of attractions at the British and other foreign Government stands. There were the new V. A. 3 "Hovercraft," a new British invention which can travel on water, in the air and on land. The British Pavilion itself is being supplied with light and power by a 300 kilowatt generator.

For a "world tour," visitors can pick up a telephone, dial for any chosen language, and hear a story in Yoruba, Ibo, Hausa, English or French.

U S A Pavilion

The theme of the United States of America pavilion at the 1962 Nigerian International Trade Fair is "New Skills, New Tools, New Markets," and visitors to the American pavilion will see many exhibits which illustrate this theme.

More than 100 U.S. manufacturers are exhibiting their products in the American building. The products range in size from small hand tools to a completely automated bakery. We understand that the daily production of bakery goods will be donated to Nigerian institutions.

Also on display will be many household products, from large items such as automatic washing machines and clothes driers to electric tin openers.

Other exhibits at the United States Stand include a demonstration of high-speed offset printing, an agriculture exhibit showing how farmers can cooperate to increase efficiency on the farm; demonstration kitchens where Nigerian and American dishes will be prepared; and a display of American space exploration projects, including a model of Telstar, the communications satellite now in orbit.

Hong Kong Stand

There are 1,500 quality products from Hong Kong which the Government of that country is exhibiting at their Stand at the Fair. The goods carefully selected for the Fair, range from exquisite examples of Chinese craftsmanship to modern products, such as transistor radios, air-conditioners and cameras.

The Hong Kong textile industry figured prominently. On display are wide range of cotton piece-goods, including the popular indigo wax prints specially picked to cater to the sophisticated and selective taste of the Nigerian consumer.

Other articles on the stand are air-conditioners, and luggage, plastic articles and aluminum kitchen-ware, umbrellas and electric fans, shoes, cutlery and cosmetics.

At the Stand, I met Mr. Robert S. Sun, Information Officer to the Hong Kong Government and other members of Hong Kong Trade Fair delegation who showed me a lot of things.

Five Nigerians who are now studying machine processing in America under U.S. Aid will return next month to assist Mr. Adams in his great work.

Oni Returns From U K

Among the passengers who arrived from United Kingdom this week were Mr. Alex Ola Oni, Cleansing Superintendent of the Lagos Town Council, and his wife, Wolmotu.

A sports enthusiast, Mr. Oni left this shore about three months ago and visited many places of interest both in England and Scotland.

Census: American To Assist

Mr. John N. Adams has arrived in Lagos to serve as a data processing adviser in the Census Office. This was announced by the American Embassy, which stated that his services were being provided by the United States Government through the Agency for International Development (U.S. AID).

Mr. Adams, a specialist in data processing systems and procedures, will assist the Census Office staff in recording and tabulating the data acquired in the 1962 Nigerian census. Special IBM tabulating machines are being used.
