Ministry of Communications

Licence for Television Receivers

It is hereby notified for general information that in accordance with the Regulations made under the Wireless Telegraphy Ordinance, as amended by the Wireless Telegraphy (Amendment) (No. 2) Regulations, 1959 it is required with effect from 1st January, 1960, that a licence be obtained to establish and operate a television receiver or television receivers. The fees for such licences are as follows:-

- (a) for a private residence, or a Native Authority or Local Government Council School or Reading Room—£2. 10. 0d
- (b) for a cafe, restaurant, hotel, club, or public entertainment—£25. 0s. 0d per year.
- (c) for other premises, or in special circumstances, such special fees as the Director of Posts and Telegraphs may prescribe.

2. A licence to establish and operate a television receiver will be known as a Broadcast Receiving Licence (including Television). It includes a licence for sound reception, and therefore the holder of such a licence is not required to obtain a further licence for any Radio receiver that may be established and operated on the same premises as a licensed television receiver. A licence to operate a radio receiver, formerly known as a Broadcast Listener's Licence, will in future be known as a Broadcast Receiving Licence (excluding television) AND DOES NOT AUTHORISE THE USE OF A TELEVISION RECEIVER.

3. Broadcast Receiving Licences (including Television) can be obtained at present from Post Offices situated within television reception areas, and will in due course be available from all Post Offices.
