BBC To Report "Men In Power"

A special post election report, called "The Men in Power" about the personalities of the men who have been elected in Britain's General Election, will be broadcast in BBC's programme for West Africa on Wednesday, October 21, at 11.30 GMT on 21.61,17, 81 and 15,235 megacycles in the 13,16 and 19 metre bands.

During the recent election campaign, the BBC African Service has recorded scenes at election meetings throughout the country that give a dramatic impression of the British parliamentry election system at work. The scene at the anuouncement of the voting in the Prime Minister's constituency will be one of the many recorded highlights. Political commetators from Britains leading newspapers will also be heard in the programme, giving an overal impression of the enormous press, radio and Television coverage of the 1964 election compaign.

ZAMBIA'S INDEPENDENCE

On October 24 Northern Rhodesia or "Zambia" as it will be known becomes an independent sovereing state To mark the birth of this new nation the BBC African Service is broadcasting THE 36TH STATE, a programme that commemorates Zambia as the 36th country in Africa to become indepent.

THE 36TH STATE, which is broadcast on Friday, October 23, at 1145 GMT, describes Zambia and its people and how independence has been achieved the voice of Dr. Kenneth Kaunda, the Prime Minister elect, will be heard in the programme

Zambia's independence is also celebrated by the BBC African Service with a special variety show for Africans in London at the SIMBA CLUB The show will be attended by some 400 Zambia and other African well-wishers, and highlights from it will be brodcast on Sunday, Oct. 18, at 11. 18 GMT on 21 61, 17 81 and 15. 2.35 megacyles in the 13,16 and 19 metre bands.

The SIMBA CLUB artist include top singing star from Southern Rodesia, Dorothy Masuka; from Britain's beat-wave city, Liverpool, the Ghanaian-born Chants from South Africa the popular Woodpeckers; and from Mombas East Africa's pop singer Sal Davis Zambians in London will complete the entertainment with Songs from their homeland and the packed audience is expected to stay on talking and dancing until late in the evening

Nigeria's first landscape Architect

LONDON, — A Nigerian graduate at the University of Newcastle on Tyne in north-east England has become his country's first qualified landscape architect.

Mr Emmanuel Akah, 36, an employee of the Ministry of Agriculture (Forestry Division) in Enugu, received his Diploma in Landscape Design following a year's post-graduate work at Newcastle, under Nigeria/U.K techinical assistance arrangement

In an interview with our L.P.S. correspondent, Mr. Akah said he was "thrilled" at being the first Nigerian to qualify in this field.

"Landscape designers," he said "have an important role to play in the future development of Nigeria. With the present rate of industrial, housing and population growth, it is essential that the best possible use is made of the country's natural attractions.

Before studing landscape desing, Mr Akah spent two years studing forestry at Oxford University. He and his wife and three children will arrive in Lagos by sea on October 22.

Work Begins On 500-Mile Oil Pipe

LONDON — Work began recently on the 500-mile pipeline designed to carry over ten million tons of crude oil a year from the Shara wells to the Algerian Mediterranean port of Arzew,

Mr. Edward du Cann, Minister of State at the British Board of Trade, said at the inauguration ceremony that the £25,000 000 contract was the biggest ever awarded to the British firm in North Africa.

Last Sunday, a plant was opened at Arzew for liquefying natural methane gas for shipment to Britain.

Shipments of gas made under a 15-year contract with the British Gas council would ultimately be worth £6. Million a year, Mr. du Cann said.
